Re: Postal Savings Bank NOW.

To whom it may concern.

The upper echelon of both major parties since the mid-eighties have and will always perpetually do so put the financial cartels {the banksters} before the people. That now we have our democratically elected government captured and being dictated to by the private sector money power. Where they decree we the people are little more than a disposable commodity to be used, abused and cast aside. This orchestrated dystopian philosophy for the populous only benefits the corrupt one percent so called elitist's who created it. This Regional Banking Taskforce holds in their hands the power to eliminate this monopoly of corruption. The first initial step being a Commonwealth Postal Savings Bank of which attached is the Bill for your consideration. We the people do not require a talkfest on this issue culminating in it being swept under the political carpet. For the outcome of this taskforce being under the microscope of every, and I mean every Australian. For the future generations wellbeing is now balanced on the fulcrum point of financial prosperity or poverty on the outcome of your actions. The second step being a National Productivity Infrastructure Bank which as Australian history proves will revive our nation to the powerhouse of industry it once was. This will ensure and create the now lacking skilled jobs with excellent wages and a secure future for all. Not speculation that the cabal control to bulge their coffers and pockets which produce nothing for the people except inescapable debt. There is also a bill for a National Development bank which has had two hearings in the House of Representatives and one in the Senate. Which is being tabled again in the imminent future and I am sure will gain more than your attention. Consequently do not be found wanting in your deliberations and we remain.

Respectfully Yours.
